WOODLAND
HIGH SCHOOL

PUTAH CANYON

Foreword

SINCE historic time began aeons ago, more and more, co-operation has become the advancement slogan of tribe, community, state, nation, and world. Alert but tolerant citizenship has become a vital necessity of every self-governing body of people; hence school and community are today marching shoulder to shoulder in the procession of civic progress.

The ILEX staff of '31 conceived the idea of recording community high school co-operation in this yearbook, of broadcasting from Station W. H. S. the highlights of Woodland and Yolo County; scenic, agricultural, and stockraising. Most gracious assistance was given by representative organizations and business citizens of Woodland. (See p. 80).

Reader: The student body invites you to enjoy with them scenes of the favorite haunts for Woodlanders and "Yoloites" and glimpse with them some of the thriving industries, to feel with them a pride in some of the representative prize stock from Yolo County and from the Purple Circle. (See pp. 79, 63). The latter is a leading organization of stockmen and includes a section having a twenty mile radius with Davis as its center.

Reader: Again you are invited to scan with W. H. S. these slogans:

Everything that grows anywhere grows everywhere in Yolo County.

More purple ribbons have been won by the purebred livestock of the Purple Circle area than in any other such area in the United States.

THE STAFF

Dedication

To Civic Pride and Progress the world over, and in Woodland and Yolo County in particular, we loyally dedicate the ILEX of '31.

Our Town

BACK again to California,
I have come once more to stay;
I had left this fertile valley
At a very early day.

Then the scattered pioneer towns
Stood along the river side;
All was rugged unknown country
O'er these ranges wild and wide.

Now I mark the many changes,
From the days of long ago,
Thriving, prosperous, fertile ranches,
Where the fruit and grain fields grow.
Small towns now have gone forever,
Known to pioneers old and gray,
In their stead fair lies our city,
Busy Woodland rich and gay.

Centered all within an empire
Such as king has never known,
Midst the broad and rolling prairies,
Filled with sunny, happy homes,
Yielding bounteous gifts of Nature
Known all o'er the Golden West—
Cities all in California:
Our dear Woodland is the best.

Springing from this unknown valley
In a few short busy years,
Stands this rich and growing city
Where once roamed the timid deer.
Now the airplanes whir and zoom
High above our "City of Trees"
Who could vision all these changes
Wafted on the Woodland breeze!

—GEORGIA WILLIAMS.

*W*HAT does the haymaker do for us all
As he mows down the fields throughout the summer and fall?
He stores up the fragrance of new mown hay
And transports it hither, yon, and away.

What do our school days do for us all
As they mold us and measure through winter and fall?
They store up the treasures of learning new-won;
They bring choicest friendships from sun to sun.

A Group: Those whose names appeared on every honor roll until April 1.

B Group: Those whose names failed to appear but once.

The Woodland High School District is greatly indebted to the men and women who from time to time serve as members of the Board of Education. Without emolument they are making a generous contribution of time and intelligent effort to the up-building of the Woodland schools.

The ILEX takes this means of rendering tribute to the outgoing Board of Education. They served the community during the period when all of our present modern buildings were constructed. Their tasks were made doubly difficult by the series of disastrous fires which in 1923 destroyed both the main high school and grammar school. Our present schools are a monument to their vision and efforts.

Mr. J. L. Harlan, President of the Board for the past eight years, is voluntarily retiring after serving for twenty successive years. This is a record of unselfish interest in education seldom equalled.

Mrs. Katherine E. Fait and Mr. W. L. Morris are voluntarily retiring from the Board after eight years of loyal service.

Mr. L. E. Wraith and Mr. Irvin Clover have served devotedly on the Board of Education for eight and five years respectively. They were successful candidates for re-election this spring. Mr. Wraith will be chairman of the new Board whose other members are Mr. Irvin Clover, Mr. Eugene Laugenour, Mr. C. C. McDonald and Mr. Paul Stephens, a group of progressive citizens who will continue to represent the community's vital interest in education.

LAVERN PEART LOUISE EPPERSON

Our Best All Round Citizens

To give the students of W. H. S. a chance to classify and distinguish personalities, and also to give them practice in voting, the ILEX held an election day for the purpose of selecting by a majority vote the best students in various types of activities. Among the leaders selected were the best athletes, best dancers, best-looking blonds and brunettes, and the jolliest students. The winners of the rest of the election are pictured on page 78, but above are shown the two chosen by the students as the best all around citizens of the school.

It was no surprise to the judges that these two should be awarded the vote. The first girl in the history of the Woodland High School to be trusted with that office, Louise Epperson was student-body president for the year 1930-31, won a block W in sports, was on the Orange Peal and Ilex staffs, was Senior Girls' Hi-Y president, took part in a one-act play, and ranked high in studies. Whatever she undertakes, Louise always sees through. She says little about her efforts for the best interests of W. H. S., nor has she any need to do so. Results tell the story.

Lavern Peart was Senior class president, was an all star football man, was a fine track man, and honored his Alma Mater by ranking third for the judging of fruit trees in a state contest at Davis. Success seems to fail in spoiling Lavern. Wherever the need is greatest, there you find him with ready assistance and a friendly smile. A busy man himself, he is never too busy to listen to the other fellow's problem.

Before turning to page 78 to see the winners of the rest of the election, remember—the school needs more students of the type that these two have been for the past four years. It needs active leaders who will stand head and shoulders above the general group and will sincerely put themselves into any task and smile with the joy of being able to be of service.

Memories

Memories are all that's left
Of our last glorious year,
Spent with book and dance and sport
In Woodland High School dear.

Now we've crossed one more deep gulf
That lies 'mid trap and snare.
Now on our own feet we'll stand
To meet the whole world square.

We are thankful for the friends
We've gained in our four years,
Parting from them all just now
To us almost brings tears.

As one cannot forever stay,
Content we'll have to be
With the one thing ever left
To us, a memory.

—LOUISE EPPERSON.

Last Will and Testament of the Senior Class

We, the hale and hearty Seniors of the Class of 1931, do herewithin solemnly and succinctly record our last will and testament. As a corporate body we bequeath the following:

To the Lower Classmen, we leave our dignified manner in Assembly.

To the Faculty we will our orchestra of "rubber-bands" and "spit-balls" as a token in remembrance of our stimulating behavior.

As Senior boys in our midst we nobly bequeath: To our little brothers, the Freshmen, and also to the Sophomores and Juniors, our ability in running the school.

As Senior girls amongst us we beautifully bestow: Upon the girls of the lower classes our attractive appearance in dress.

As individuals we bequeath as here below stated:

I, Christie Armstrong, bequeath my shyness to Wanda McGrew.

I, Oscar Anderson, unwillingly leave my sunny smile to Dean Conard.

I, Wilma Brown, bequeath my golden curls to Jane Scarlett.

I, Bill Brubaker, do loyally leave my position as Illex Editor to Louis Schliemen.

We, Worth Buckles and Charles Cole, do willingly leave our habit of "getting by" to any one who can "get by" with it.

I, Allen Collins, bequeath my delivery truck to Florence.

I, Jane Crowley, am taking everything of interest (Ross Hoppin) with me.

I, Charlotte Fruit, do leave my "petite" ways to Anna Lucas.

We, Mary Griffin and Louise Epperson, bequeath our studiousness to Marjorie Praet. May she not be overwhelmed.

I, Francis Nelson, bequeath my stage stride to Betty Wells.

I, Evelyn Branigan, do leave "My Smiling Irish Eyes" to my cousin.

I, Ross Hoppin, willingly leave my slender lines to Bob Lowe.

I, Nellie Whitehead, do bequeath my permanent wave to Alice Jordan.

We, Meta Sayre and Evelyn Peterson, leave all our Davis Aggie "boy friends" to Alice Nuttall and Betty Wells.

I, Harold Lamoree, do bequeath my bottle of Sta-comb to Jimmy Hare.

I, Margaret Dole, leave my auburn curls to Elizabeth Fairchilds.

I, Bliss More, leave my taking ways with the girls to Leslie Murphy.

We, Leonard Orrick and Norman Ogleby, bequeath our jobs as electricians to any one that will have them.

I, Mildred Cunningham, bequeath my dancing ability to Florence Lamoree.

I, Robert Rath, do leave unto Louis Schlieman my "baby grand."

I, Leonard Raffaetta, proudly leave my football to Joe Richter.

I, Louise White, leave "Ma Chevie" to Arlett Linnell.

I, Fred Wild, bequeath my talkativeness to Bill Baird.

I, Dorothy Cassel, quite unwillingly leave all my ambitiousness to Carrie Willis.

We, Ed Howard and Ronald Davis, leave our close harmony to Fred Wirth and Bob Towle.

I, Ben Jull, leave myself entirely to Beva.

We, Florence and Helen Kubli, leave our sisterly love to Betty and Helen Wells.

I, Melvin March, bequeath my "Pepsodent Smile" to Anthony Richter.

I, Ferdinand Schlieman, leave my dancing ability to Elwood Williams.

I, Del Fenton, leave my noon walks with Erline to George Anderson.

I, Melvin Kramer, bequeath my "wise cracks" to Herman Snavelly.

I, Peter Richter, willingly leave my blushes to Bruce Beeman.

I, Doris Cramer, bequeath my bottle of peroxide to Lelabelle Richmond.

I, Frank Fletcher, do leave unto Orval Davis, my teasing ways.

I, Cecile Flowers, leave my henna rinse to Jeanette Felsch.

I, Harvy Earl, leave my curling iron to Sandy.

I, Wyatt Monroe, bequeath my boisterousness to Charles Greene.

We, Lola Berrettoni, Dorothy Musgrove, Margaret Musgrove, Harriet Newton, and Charlotte Blizard, are taking everything with us.

I, Billy Powell, do bequeath my important walk to Merritt Hollingsworth.

I, Enid Conard, leave my melodious voice to Phyllis Kimball.

I, Alberta Best, am leaving my novelty jewelry to Miss Chucovich.

I, Bill Coons, leave my noisy ways to my little brother.

I, Frank Kimerer, bequeath my Rudy Valentino looks to Tony Richter.

I, Lydia Luraschi, bequeath my G. A. A. numerals to Nora.

I, Raymond Goodwin, leave my big brown eyes to Rodney Ely.

I, Lavern Peart, bequeath my office as Senior class president to Bruce Beeman.

I, Virginia Peterson, leave all my pounds to Jane Praet.

I, Marjorie Mezger, leave my shorthand grades to anyone who wants them.

I, Margaret Stetson, am leaving my field-day records to Ann Stuefloten.

I, Hazel Walker, bequeath my foreign looks to Lillian Chase.

WOODLAND, "THE CITY of TREES"

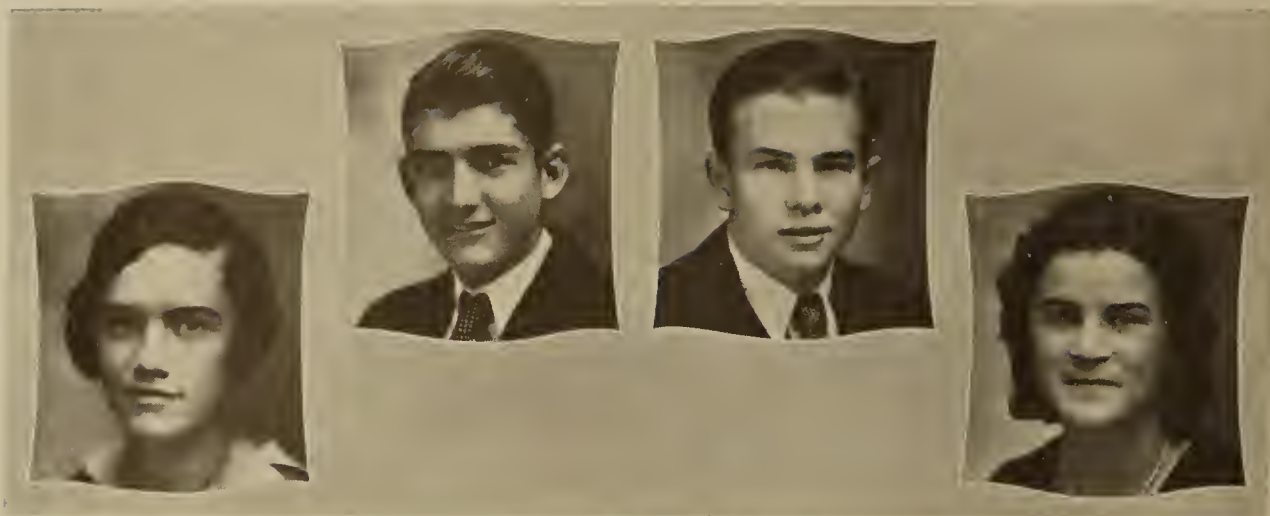

*W*HAT comes forth from the farmer's toil
As he digs and delves and plows in the soil?
Why, all the things that industry sings
And all the beauty that nature brings.

What comes forth from the youth's endeavor
As he works and plays and hopes forever?
Why, all the things that the future brings
And all the joy that rich living sings.

Co-operation With Community Life

As the Student Body of '31, we of Woodland High School have made a special effort to co-operate in definite ways with the townspeople of Woodland. By this endeavor, we have hoped both to develop among ourselves a higher standard of school and community citizenship and to express our appreciation of the support that Woodlanders have given us in all our undertakings.

When Yolo County joined the rest of the United States in the good-will campaign to raise money for the Red Cross Drought Relief Fund, W. H. S. volunteered its mite of $100. Every year the Student Body automatically joins the Red Cross when the students and faculty buy their Student Body cards, thereby contributing annually about $125 to the local Red Cross.

Besides striving to co-operate with the community, W. H. S. develops leadership responsibility, and democracy through a number of clubs in athletic, social, scholastic, agricultural, and business circles. All of these clubs give the student an idea of the citizen's life in a community, and prepare him for participation in this life. Our vocational studies, such as Ag work, manual training, and journalism, emphasize the community spirit, as do also many projects carried out in academic subjects. In fact, we try in all ways to practice those qualities which we think the citizens would like to find in those first entering into their community life.

Interclass Debate

Placing the tryouts for interclass debate more upon a student volunteer basis this year resulted in bringing to the tryouts the best forensic talent in the school. Upon invitation, the Senior-Junior debate was given before the Rotary Club.

In the list above, you will see the names of four who have appeared in the interclass debates for two successive years: Louise Epperson, Harriet Huston, Mary Millsap, and Elwood Williams. You will also find the names of two debaters who were alternates last year: Marion Bauman and Regnar Paulsen.

The judges voted for the Junior team, the winners of 1930, as the champions of the 1931 series and for Elwood Williams as the high point individual debater. The debate coaches were: Seniors, Miss Nelson; Juniors, Miss Dobie; Sophomores, Miss White and Mrs. Mumm; Freshmen, Miss Lance.

DEBATE SCHEDULE

Nov. 26—Resolved: That the thirteen month calendar should be adopted in the United States.

Affirmative—Seniors: Louise Epperson, Margaret Musgrove.

Negative—Juniors: Regnar Paulsen, Elwood Williams (winners).

Jan. 15—Resolved: That the present system of installment buying is economically unsound.

Affirmative—Sophomores: Harriet Huston, Marion Bauman (winners).

Negative—Freshmen: Dean Conard, Kenneth Leake.

April 29—Resolved: That the United States should cease to protect by armed force capital invested in foreign lands, except after formal declaration of war.

Affirmative—Sophomores: Marion Bauman, Mary Millsap.

Negative—Juniors: Regnar Paulsen, Elwood Williams (winners).

1930 DEBUT

The Orange Peal made its 1930 debut on September 24 in a new dress. The sport page was glorified by an Albert Waters athletic design. Several new departments, such as "We Rise to Remark", "Newsettes", and "Who's Who" were inaugurated. Mr. Punch introduced his column for the first time also.

Orange Peal won all All-California honors in the Leland Stanford Press Conference. On April 9, 10, 11, delegates were also sent to the University of California Press Convention: Mary Ellen Griffin, Lydia Luraschi, and Louise Epperson.

During the football season, the staff issued an extra in the last half of the Marysville-Woodland game. The plays were telephoned to the press room, set up, and at the end of the third quarter the fans were reading the paper.

ACT I, II THE LUCKY JADE

The Lucky Jade

Among the "best of high school operettas" was the frequent comment heard on April 16 and 17, when audiences filled the W. H. S. auditorium to capacity and enjoyed "The Lucky Jade", an artistic, up-to-the-minute operetta. Under the skilled direction of Miss Viola Barak, vocal music instructor, and of Mrs. Margaret Cook, dramatics instructor, beautiful lighting, unusual settings, dainty costumes, and gay choruses with exceptional principles combined to make one impression of joyous harmony. The choruses were assisted by a twenty-piece orchestra, selected by Mr. F. C. McReynolds.

A real professional touch, the prologue, brought an expectant hush from the audience, while Peggy Cloud danced a wierd interpretation before the voodoo idol attended by the priests, Harvey Earl and Earnest Scott. John Cost, a trader, stole the idol's jade ear around which the story centers.

Later, this lucky jade came into the possession of Liza, a negro mammy on a Southern plantation. Gradually the plot unfolded to reveal Horace Ferguson (Ben Jull), a guest on the Courtney estate, as the villian who stole the "green stone" from Liza and who lost the beautiful Mary Ann Courtney to her childhood sweetheart, John Endicott.

While upper classmen composed a majority of the cast, the leading lady was Pauline Easterday, a freshman. Her charming voice and stage presence will be in future demand in W. H. S. Edward Howard was inimitable as the leading man. His voice was a crowning feature of the evening.

The character role of Downs, an old pensioner on the Courtney estate, was well handled by Ronald Davis. As the military Colonel Waverly, Robert Towle's acting was superb. In true Western style, Fred Wirth played the over-important sheriff. Enid Conard and Larry McKennon were ideal as doting wife and hen-pecked husband. Enid's dual dramatic and solo role deserve a special tribute. Lolita Wilkinson and Alice Jordan were "hits" as Liza and Fanchon, the negro mammy and French maid. Pleasing additions to the comedy were the college boys, Kenneth Kerr, Clifford Christison, and George Beretonni, and the college girls who assisted them, Christie Armstrong and Louise White.

Committees headed by faculty members assisted by students made the Ilex show of 1931 a production without a single "hitch". Co-operation was the password.

YOLO COUNTY COURT HOUSE

*W*HY does the harvester work in the heat
Of a bright summer sun, a-cutting his wheat?
He labors so hard that the world might be fed
That lord of the vitamins—the Loaf of Bread.

Why do the young folk then call out, “Play ball”!
No matter how fearful the odds ’gainst them all?
They pass and they punt, they run and they strike;
Up sportsmanship’s ladder they climb to great height.

The Wolf Pack Machine

COACH JUSTUS LAWSON—Here is the fellows' answer to what they think about our new coach, "He's all right". It is due to Lawson that our football team has had a higher morale than in preceding years. On the turf during practices he has been right in with the players all the time, showing them how to play. The keynote to his big success was that his team clicked off just like one big machine, and this machine continued to click whether Woodland was losing or winning".

ASSISTANT COACH ED FARR—A special tribute is due Mr. Farr for his untiring efforts to help build up a winning team; and he has achieved success, without a doubt.

CAPTAIN GLEN MORE—A large majority of the credit for our victorious WOLF PACK belongs to "Dinty" More. It was his persistent spirit that boosted on his team mates to win their battles, and above all "Dinty" is known to be a clean sport all the way through. Glen was not a spectacular player, but from start to finish he was in the battles with all he had.

CAPT.-ELECT BEEMAN—"Husky", as we know him, doesn't have to bow to any one. As quarterback his generalship of the 1930 WOLF PACK shows what he will do next year. Although a few bad breaks marred his record to a slight degree, we know these will be missing from his 1931 record. Bruce is the grittiest and the pluckiest football player that Woodland has had for many a year.

THE W. H. S. TEAM—The Ilex staff officially congratulates the football team as a whole. Woodland High should be very proud of the fellows that made up this year's championship team. While too much cannot be said about Coaches Lawson and Farr, the two men that spent hours of their time in building such a wonderful machine, the future student body should also remember the many hours of gruelling practice that were necessary for the WOLF PACK team.

In selecting the All-Conference team this year, four Woodland fellows were picked for the best men for their positions. They were: Captain-elect Bruce Beeman, Peter Richter, Monse Andreozzi, and last but not least, Ross Hoppin. It isn't any wonder that the WOLVES should go through a season undefeated with such men in the line-up.

Championship Games of 1930

YREKA 13—WOODLAND 39

After completing the regular league series which the WOLVES won, they had to play Yreka for the championship of Sub-league No. 3. Woodland had the edge on the lads from the north from the beginning of the tussle, but the Yreka boys displayed a surprising amount of fight. Although Coach Lawson used the second string for most of this game, these fellows almost outplayed the first stringers. Yreka had cleaned up on nearly everything in the North, but they just weren't equal to the job of defeating the champions of Sub-league No. 2.

REDDING 6—WOODLAND 25

In order to have enough rest before the Modesto game, the WOLVES played Redding for the championship of Sub-league No. 4, two days after the game with Yreka. Peart started the scoring with a buck over center, but the Redding fellows nearly slipped a fast one over on Captain More's bunch when they started a march down the field that proved almost fatal. Although the visitors nearly scored against the WOLVES, they didn't quite do it; and the Woodlanders showed their superiority by making a number of goals before Coach Lawson shoved in the second string. The first string played only one quarter of the game, but they certainly had the game in the bag before the substitutes were sent in.

MODESTO 33—WOODLAND 0

This game was just another good heavy team against a good light team. Woodland played superb football during the first part of the game; but when the ball was fumbled right on the goal line, the fellows seemed to become dispirited. After the WOLVES had lost the ball on that fumble, the Modesto team started down the field in a series of wide end runs and off-tackle plays. The local boys tried vainly to stop the rush. In reviewing the game, Coach Lawson said, "If the fellows had made that first touchdown I think they would have won the tussle".

Tribute to the Basketball Teams

The basketball teams are to be complimented on the showing they made in the N. C. H. S. A. L. last season in spite of the fact that they didn't win any championships. Coach Leo Cossmann and his Unlimited team especially deserve credit because they really played wonderful ball. Had not the Unlimiteds been unfortunate in both of their games with Marysville, they probably would have brought home the cup and could have avoided the defeat at the hands of the Yuba City Honkers. As the WOLVES didn't down the Marysville Indians, they can offer no excuse for not winning the championship. Everyone should be proud of the way the Unlimiteds overpowered the largest percentage of their opponents and set aside the handicap, that all but one of the WOLVES were little fellows.

Woodland High will lose three prominent basketball players through graduation this year. The boys are Frank Kimerer, Herb LeCornec, and Ben Jull. Kimerer has been an outstanding player in both football and basketball, besides being one of the best track men the school has had for some time. LeCornec has been outstanding in basketball circles for four years. His first year was spent on the Midget team; his second year on the Limited team, and his last two years on the Unlimited squad. Jull graduated at the end of the first semester and was unable to finish the regular season, but he will be remembered for the outstanding work he did during the first of the season. Jull has played basketball ever since he started to high school, and he was also a crack football player during his third year in school.

The Limiteds didn't do quite as well in their season as the Unlimiteds, but they are to be congratulated on the showing they did make. Under the leadership of Coach Lawson and Captain Bill Baird, the squad progressed rapidly; but some of the opposing teams were just a little too much for them. All of the fellows on the Limited team should be in high school again next year; so the WOLVES should have some more very good teams.

The Midgets are just embarking on a new journey. They were not quite sure of themselves this last year because they are all rather young, but they showed the stuff of which basketball players are made. This is just the starting of their basketball career in high school; so they really deserve a great deal of credit. Captain Ruggles played superb basketball all season and should be assured of a permanent berth on one of the heavier teams next year.

"A," "B," AND "C" SQUADS

Track Team

Coach Leo Cossmann's tracksters of '31 have made a wonderful showing. With only six men, our track team took fourth place at Roseville. Diggs won first place in the broad jump and Buckles took first place in the pole vault. Millsap was Woodland's high point man at Roseville.

At Davis, Millsap carried off first place in the hundred yard dash; Kimerer took fourth place in the half mile. Buckles made second in the Class B pole vault; and Diggs captured second in the broad jump. We all want to boast for the team and the fine showing that they have made even though they were short in numbers.

Tennis Team

For the purpose of playing interscholastic games, a tennis team was organized this year, under the direction of Mr. Miller. Baird, Griffith, Hare, Harris, Morris, Orrick, Proctor and Wolff composed the team. Bill Baird was elected leader and Edwin Proctor secretary. The two matches played as the Ilex goes to press show a good record for this season. We hope to boast of a larger team next year.

Baseball Nine

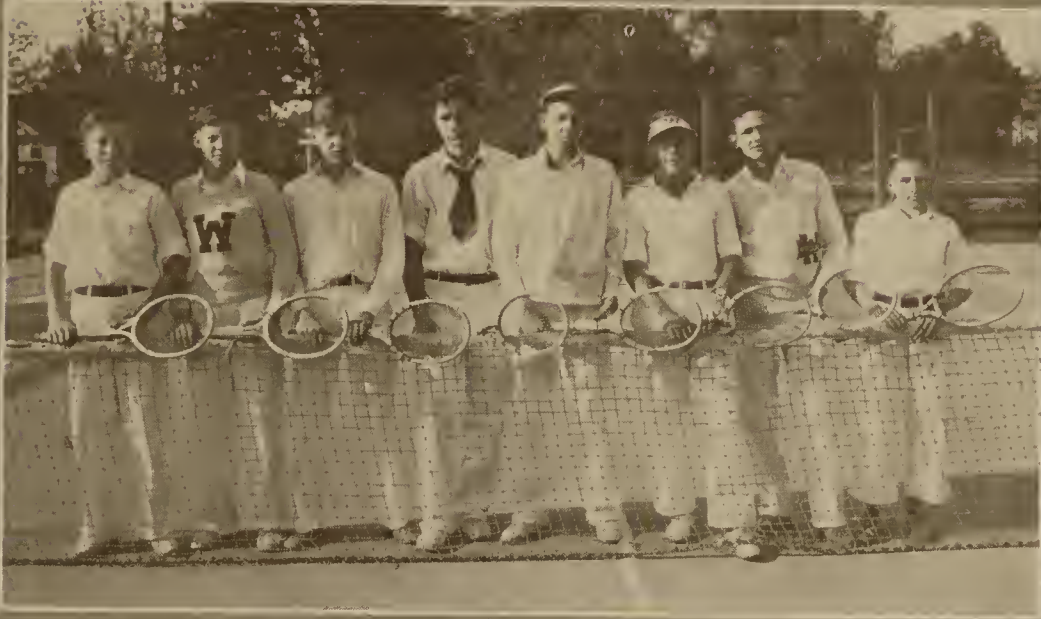

With the following boys out for baseball and Justus Lawson as their coach, W. H. S. is on the lookout for some lively games. The lineup follows:

Pitchers—Beeman, Eddy; catcher, Cook; first base, Didion; second base, Snavelly, Simas; third base, Mumma; shortstop, Ruggles, Stucfloten; outfielders, Whitlow, Bird, Marston, Hannemann, LeCornec.

Our hitters and their averages are:

Didion, .450; Bird, .450; Cook, .400; Mumma, .375.

The Woodland infield is considered the best in the league; and it, as well as the rest of the team, has upheld this reputation so far.

TRACK, TENNIS, BASEBALL

Girls' Athletics

Hockey, which was the first sport of the year, was well supported with forty-four girls out for the game. The Sophs were the champions of the season. The captains of the teams were:

Lydia Luraschi, Seniors; Mary Howard, Juniors; Evelyn Brown, Sophs; Helen Blizard, Frosh.

Three-court basketball was the major sport of the semester as usual. Much competition among the girls for the positions was aroused by the large numbers that turned out for the preliminaries. After a lively series of games, the Seniors carried away the honors.

Soccer was made an interclass sport for the first time in Woodland High. A large representation from the classes resulted in some good games.

Miss O'Brien introduced a system into the physical education work this year, whereby the girls were given more responsibility. Each class was divided into squads, each of which elected a captain who had full charge of her group. This plan proved very efficient. Miss O'Brien put the girls through a ten minute period of exercise every day before their regular games. Also, she has given dancing lessons which were much enjoyed by all the girls.

Louise Epperson, Lydia Luraschi, and Margaret Musgrove won their block W's this year, the highest honor that the G. A. A. bestows on any girl.

Physical Education Day

The annual Physical Education Day will come after the Ilex has gone to press this year; so the results can only be prophesied. Frank Kimerer is the most likely participant to win the individual honors, but there are a few other people that will give him a close race. Kimerer won the cup two years ago and was only three points behind the winner last year. If Kimerer has improved at all, he will in all probability win the cup this year.

For Physical Education Day, the posture parade comes first when students, attired in their gym suits, line up in the street north of the main building, according to classes. Then they march over to and around the track. Judges select for posture parade cup the class that marches in the best manner.

After the parade the girls and boys have their separate contests. The boys are lined up on the football field in four divisions, A, B, C, and D. The A class fellows compete in the 100 yard dash, rope climb, 12 pound shot put, standing broad jump, and the football throw. The lower divisions put the eight pound shot. The B division runs the seventy-five yard dash, while the C and D divisions run the fifty yard dash.

The classes compete for high honors in this annual event, and last year the Seniors won the cup, although both of the individual high point cups went to Sophomores, Larry McKennon and Mary Howard. Each division has a medal for high point man or woman in that particular section.

The girls have events something on the same order as the boys except that they throw a basketball instead of the shot, and they throw the baseball instead of the football. To take the place of the broad jump, they have the tennis serve.

What's a Voodoo Priestess Among Friends

SHORT STORY RANKED SECOND

"We've got about ten minutes until she gives out. I'm not just sure where we are, but I think we're over South Africa. You jump first, Minnie, dear, and I'll try to see where you land. Are you very much afraid?"

"Yes, a little, but I'll live, I guess. Do you count three, and then pull the string?"

"That's the idea. Now, if we don't happen to come out at the same place, be sure and stay right where you land, and don't go wandering around. I'll never find you if you do. Good-bye, dear. Remember what I've told you."

"Good-bye, Dad. I'll be all right. Don't worry about me."

So saying, Minnie Soto, beloved only daughter of John D. Soto, of the rich and respected North Dakota Sotos, stepped out on the wing of the circling airplane, shut her eyes, and jumped.

"Right in that clearing," breathed John D. "I hope she wasn't hurt. Well, here I go!"

* * * *

"Now that that's over and I've no broken bones, I guess I'll just wait for Dad. There couldn't be a more beautiful place in which to do anything, even if it's only wait," mused our heroine, wandering around the clearing. "I wonder what's making that funny noise. Oh, who are these dreadful people!"

It seems that some savages, seeing Minnie come drifting through the air, thought her some new sort of goddess, which they had concocted on the spur of the moment, and immediately dragged her off to their near-by village to be duly initiated in their tribal rites. As they had never before seen a white person, they knew nothing of English, and so greatly applauded Minnie's impassioned plea for freedom, thinking it the latest thing in voodoo chants.

* * * *

Meanwhile, John D., having alighted in a more civilized region than his daughter, exhausted his immediate energy getting up a posse to look for the young lady.

"You remember that clearing about ten miles from the edge of the jungle?" he said to his companion. "I saw her land there; so she'll be around there somewhere."

Travel through dense African forest was not our hero's idea of an ideal rest cure; for he was elected to keep a look out for wild animals, while the others cut away the underbrush. About dusk, they arrived at the clearing, but as they did not see Minnie at first glance, they devoted a little time to looking in the surrounding trees to see if she was asleep in one of them. Suddenly they were surprised by the sound of a crashing through the forest. An elephant, his trunk flung high, blinded with rage, plunged in among them; but John D. was ready. One shot, although it did not kill the enraged animal, caused him to crash off in another direction.

The shot, which had reverberated through the otherwise still forest, had so alarmed the savages that they abandoned their freshly-baptized goddess and fled. Minnie, sure that her father had fired as a signal to her, ran toward the place where the shot had come from; but instead of her father she met the enraged elephant, which knocked her down and trampled her under foot.

"What do you see, men?" asked John D., anxiously.

"Nothing but the body of some one of those savage priestesses. Guess they got excited at that shot you fired and knocked her cold when they left in such a hurry. After all, what's a voodoo priestess when we're looking for Minnie?"

When My Ship Comes In

POEM RANKED FIRST

When my ship comes in some brigh June day, in all its pomp and pride;
I hope it carries pretty clothes from nations far and wide.
I long to have an evening gown, all decked with jewels bright,
A crown of diamonds on my head, and dainty pumps of white.
I'd have a dress for every hour, and shoes to match it, too,
Some white kid gloves, the latest hat, a diamond ring or two.
I'd have a private swimming pool, with a flower garden neat,
A Rolls Royce, and a dark chauffeur to drive me down the street.
And as I think of all these things, I want them more and more;
But I'll just have to wait until my good ship nears the shore.

And yet—I wonder—could I feel content with all my gain?
And know poor souls in other lands suffer from hunger and pain?
I really think, deep in my heart, I'd feel a discontent,
To see the others toil for food while money I wastefully spent.
I'd rather hear the happy shouts of little children gay,
And give them all that I could spare, to help them on their way.
I'd romp and play with them so free, join in their merry din,
Yes—that's the thing I'm going to do when my ship comes sailing in.

—JEAN BOTTEMA.

Trees

I think that I shall never see
A poem lovely as a tree.
A tree whose hungry mouth is prest
Against the earth's sweet flowing breast:
A tree that looks at God all day
And lifts her leafy arms to pray;
A tree that may in summer wear
A nest of Robins in her hair;
Upon whose bosom snow has lain;
Who intimately lives with rain;
Poems are made by fools like me,
But only God can make a tree.

—JOYCE KILMER.

Malpais Butte

SHORT STORY RANKED FIRST

"Well, Ralph, there's only one more day between us and Malpais Butte". The speaker, a distinguished-looking man of about fifty, raised his hand to shade his eyes as he looked across a barren stretch of desert toward a gigantic butte plainly visible in the setting rays of the sun.

"I'll sure be glad to get there, Mr. Dakers. Ever since we left Fort Wingate, I've been dying to explore it".

Ralph, a young lieutenant in the Union Army, and Mr. Dakers had come west from Washington, D. C., to open up the country around Malpais Butte in west central New Mexico. They had come from Washington to Galveston by boat, and now, with two Indian guides and five pack horses, they were nearing their destination after three days of dusty travel from Fort Wingate on the Santa Fe Trail.

The next morning, about eleven o'clock, they made their camp at the foot of the butte. After eating lunch and turning the horses out to graze, Mr. Dakers and Ralph decided to begin explorations right away. Taking the two Indian guides with them, they started up the slopes of the Butte. The great cinders of the lava flow cut their shoes to ribbons. Finally, after much laborious climbing, they succeeded in reaching an opening in the face of the cliff. The Indian guides said that this was the lair of the winds. Lighting their lanterns the little party began a slow descent into the heart of the Butte. On all sides giant stalagmites and stalactites had joined until the entire grotto resembled a colonnaded hall. Turning a corner they stumbled upon an out-cropping ledge of quartz, that fairly glowed with deep veins of gold.

Lord, Mr. Dakers, we're rich"! shouted Ralph. "All we have to do is to come back tomorrow morning and break up this quartz into small enough pieces to load on the horses"!

"You're right, Ralph, it's getting late. Let's go back now to get a good night's rest, and in the morning we'll bring one of the horses with us to carry the quartz back to camp".

"Isn't this too bully for words, Mr. Dakers? Now I can marry Annabel, I can build a grand home for my mother, and I can buy a great buggy"!

"Well, Ralph, don't plan on too much because we don't know how deep the vein goes, but from the indications there ought to be enough gold to make us both millionaires".

"The only trouble is that we haven't all the proper tools for quartz mining, and it's going to be difficult business to say the least", exclaimed Mr. Dakers. "To begin with, we haven't any drills or sledge-hammers. All we have are picks and shovels. But I guess we can manage somehow, seeing how much gold there is to be had".

After breakfast next morning, Mr. Dakers, Ralph, the two Indians, Blue Cloud and Eagle Feather, and one pack horse started back for the cave. They had some difficulty in getting the horse over the cinders and rocks, but at length they arrived at the mouth of the cave.

"I'm all a-shiver, Mr. Dakers; I'm so excited", cried Ralph. "Just think, in a few minutes we will be mining gold"!

"It is rather exciting, isn't it? But we musn't get nervous, because we have a full day's work ahead of us".

Again the lanterns were lighted and again they plunged down into the heart of Malpais Butte. This time they hurried past the wonderful scenes, without noticing that the horse's added weight made the ground shake and tremble under their feet. Presently they came to their gold ledge of yesterday, where they immediately set to work chipping and breaking off huge chunks of gold-bearing quartz. They worked feverishly for two hours. At the end of that time they had as much quartz as the horse and the Indians could carry. But instead of being content with the gold that they had, they thought they might as well have it all; so they sent Blue Cloud back to camp to get the other four horses.

"No good", said Eagle Feather, "ponies make too heavy. Ground no hold 'em".

"You're all wrong, Chief, this ground is plenty solid here", said Mr. Dakers. "It goes clear to bed rock".

"Me go, no stay here, I wait outside".

"Oh! no you don't, you're going to stay and help us", muttered Ralph.

"I wish you would, Eagle Feather; we'll give you a fair share of the profits", said Mr. Dakers.

"All right, but me no want to".

Presently Blue Cloud returned with the four horses when work began again in earnest. Soon all five horses were loaded and the party decided they should start for camp. Yes, they started, but could they have guessed - - - ? ? ?

"This is certainly a good day's work eh, Ralph"!

"I should say so. All we have to do is get the gold back to Wingate and get it assayed. And then we'll be fixed for life".

Just as they were rounding a narrow turn, they felt the earth quiver.

"Look out"! shouted Ralph. But he shouted too late; the earth, unable to withstand the terrific weight of the five gold-laden horses, had crumbled beneath them and had plunged them into the eternity of the abyss.

There are various legends connected with the fate of the party. Some think that the Indian guides killed them; others think that they starved to death. But I have told the true story as it was given to me by an old Indian chief, who, in his youth, had seen the bodies of four men and five horses firmly imbedded in the ice caves of Malpais Butte.

The Pacific

POEM RANKED SECOND

He climbed upon the mountain top
To look the country o'er,
And there he saw a mighty sea
That swelled upon its shore.

The sea was very, very strange,
It was as smooth as glass;
The sun, reflecting in its depths,
Was but a fiery mass.

No ship sailed on this dreamy sea,
No stormy clouds above,
Peace and quiet reigned everywhere
This was God's land—God's love.

Balboa gazed upon the scene;
His heart beat loud and quick,
For on this great historic day
He found the blue Pacific.

—LOUIS SCHLIEMANN.

The Huntsman

SHORT STORY RANKED THIRD

When but a very small boy I had a secret ambition to become a big game hunter. On Saturdays, having nothing to do, I would shoulder my broom-handle gun, put my trusty tin sword in my oil cloth scabbard and to sum up my equipment pocket my deadly water pistol. Thus equipped and feeling safe from attacks by such beasts as toads, beetles, and gopher snakes, I would sally forth to the metropolitan refuse depositing grounds (city dumps).

Upon arriving at this hunting ground I would proceed to open attack upon auto fenders, oil drums, bedsteads, and smaller articles falling into the same classification. Many of the old stoves were very large "beasts"; so, after having bagged them, I had to be content with merely stripping them of their beautiful furs (the lids and other unfastened accessories).

My home-coming from jeopardous campaigns against aristocrats of the jungle was never graced with ovation from my mother. Products of my toil were not in much domestic demand; in fact, my parents denounced them with loud ejaculation as they found them strewn thither and yon on the landscape. My dad, assuming position as game warden, reprimanded me and inflicted upon me a penalty of several whacks with the razor strap for bagging over the limit.

Arriving at my private hunting grounds, bright and early one Saturday morning, I discovered tracks of a prowler. Tracing his foot-prints to the far end of the premises, I caught sight of the culprit. Discovering he was the "Primary School" terror, I promptly decided to modify my plans to totally demolishing the intruder.

I had planned to shoot him but at the psychological moment I discovered my ammunition was gone. This, however, did not put me at disadvantage; for I swung my broom handle gun and hit him over the head with the stock. This action appeared to injure his feelings, for with a cry of pain he turned upon me and a face-to-face battle ensued. After the encounter I resembled a perforated target discarded by a corps of light artillery. All my trusty weapons were gone, and though I tried hard, I found it impossible to make a tooth stay in its proper place.

After this experience I decided that the natives had better keep my hunting ground in Africa, and I would try to find more suitable conditions in South America.

—REGNAR PAULSEN.

On Acquiring An Artistic Temperament

ESSAY RANKED SECOND

An artistic temperament, of course, is a very dangerous and pleasant thing to inherit or perhaps acquire. However, it is no difficult task to acquire one. Artistic temperaments are mainly connected with feminine actors of note and salary, but even a streetsweeper may be the proud possessor of such an "animal".

The main thing in developing an artistic temperament is to take your own "sweet" time about doing anything. Clara Bow has this phase of it down pat. When an entire production is waiting rather impatiently for Clara to appear and an irate director is pacing up and down tearing his hair, Clara calmly phones that she will be detained until one o'clock, by a previous engagement!

A streetsweeper is also an adept at this phase of the game because he knows that no one will ever take his lordly task from him because of his incompetence, in these busy days of electric railways and "horseless carriages".

And now we come to the supreme essential in acquiring an artistic temperament. Always be sure you have a job nobody wants or is able to do as capably as you. When you have made certain of the above cardinal principle, you may go ahead and enjoy yourself to the fullest extent. After you have enjoyed your artistic temperament for awhile, you may come to the realization that you have lost your job. Of course, this is an unpleasant state of affairs, but it is just one of the risks one must run in acquiring an artistic temperament.

—EDWIN PROCTOR.

Personality In the Handshake

ESSAY RANKED FIRST

Did you ever shake a hand like a fish? Clammy and limp, it is offered with such effort that it makes you ashamed to have even suggested that the owner expend his energy so extravagantly. While pumping your friend's abnormal member, you are torn between desires to shake him violently and to help him tenderly into the nearest man-hole.

You can read a character by shaking a hand as well as by looking at one. The person with the fish hand has no "pep", no initiative. He would no sooner think of arising at four in the morning for a few sets of tennis than he would of getting a few ideas for himself—but he may be a good follower, that is if he remains awake long enough.

There is another type of handshake. It is the one that gives you the sensation of being swiftly and surely crushed to death. As if this torture is not enough, the owner of this hand usually slaps your cowering shoulders and bellows in your equally cowering ears, "How are you, old sock. Introduce me to the little woman". By the time you have recovered, your friend and the little woman are old friends and are already a block ahead of you.

The person with the iron hand has a superfluity of "pep". He would arise at three in the morning for six sets of tennis. He is the cowboy from Texas or the lumber-jack from Vermont who goes around purposely expending his energy so that his physique will be in perfect order. But, as Sam Hoffenstein says of our former specimen:

"He has in him a sort of demon
That lets him boss ten thousand he-men
Who gallop grandly o'er the plains
And bring him home their hard-earned gains;
And tho' he may not be so strong,
He lives as healthy twice as long".

The temperate hand that when it grasps yours neither leaves it cold nor maims it for life is the hand that to the proverbial birds is worth two bushes. It leaves a feeling of good cheer and the idea that you may be able to struggle along a little longer in this old world.

The person with the friendly hand is one who will do things with a little more forethought and temperance than our other two specimens. He is the possessor of a hand that spreads more good will toward men than a whole oration would by the others.

Twilight In the Sierras

POEM RANKED THIRD

Way up in the beautiful mountains,
The Sierras that tower so tall,
'Tis beautiful there in the evening—
But hark to the coyote's wild call.

Just when the twilight is falling
Is the hour I ever love best,
For then the day's toil is ended
And dreams come of some mighty quest.

When shadows creep 'round the mountains
Cast o'er us their mantle of rest,
All sounds of Nature are hushed
We're transported to Isles of the Blest.

LAFF-O-GRAFS

Charles Cole (applying for job as office boy): "I'm pretty smart. I've won a lot of prizes in crossword puzzle competitions."

Employer: "Yes, but I want someone who can be smart during office hours."

Charles: "This was during office hours."

—W.H.S.—

Sunday School Teacher: "And when it rained forty days and forty nights, what happened then?"

Kenneth Leak: "The natives said it was very unusual."

—W.H.S.—

Ernest Scott: "What are you doing now?"

Harvey Earl: "I'm an exporter; just fired by the Pullman Co."

—W.H.S.—

Frank Fletcher: "Ten years ago I had nothing."

Mildred Cunningham: "Yes?"

Frank: "Yes, now I have twice as much."

—W.H.S.—

Zachary Mumma: "Not many of the girls are wanting to get married now-a-days."

Billy Eddy: "How d'you know?"

Zachary: "I asked 'em."

—W.H.S.—

Leonard Rademaker: "How do they figure the population of a Swiss village?"

Ernest Martin: "Oh, I guess they count the number of echoes and divide by the number of mountains."

—W.H.S.—

Junkman: "Rags! Rags!"

Tramp (just passing): "Don't yer get so all-fired personal in yer remarks."

—W.H.S.—

Miss Nelson (in Public Speaking): "Criticise Charlotte's reading."

Del Fenton: "Her voice didn't have enough volume. She didn't breathe from the diaphragm."

Miss Nelson: "Notice the difference when I read."

Allen Collins (soberly): "You have a bigger diaphragm."

—W.H.S.—

Mr. Weideman: "Do you live on the railroad tracks?"

Charles Green: "Yes. Why do you ask?"

Mr. Weideman: "Well, you'd better move them; here comes the train."

—W.H.S.—

Jim Hare: "I'm a little stiff from tennis."

Mr. Dawson: "I don't care where you're from."

—W.H.S.—

Saleswoman: "Now here is a lovely sentiment—'Merry Christmas to the only girl I ever loved'."

Orval Davis: "That's fine. I'll take five—no six—of those."

—W.H.S.—

"Petey" Peterson: "So you're well read? Do you like O. Henry?"

Meta Sayre: "No. The peanuts get stuck on my teeth."

—W.H.S.—

Guide: "Why didn't you shoot that tiger?"

Kelsey Hatcher: "He didn't have the right kind of expression on his face for a rug."

Hattie Huston: "Were you ever fired with enthusiasm?"

Tony Richter: "Yeah! From every job I ever had."

—W.H.S.—

Upon being told that he had hydrophobia, Bruce Beeman picked up a pencil and began to write rapidly.

Doctor: "You don't have to make a will. It isn't that serious."

Bruce: "Heck! I'm not making a will. I'm making a list of the people I want to bite."

—W.H.S.—

Harriet Newton: "What's the matter with that elephant?"

Ruth Santos: "Shell shock."

Harriet: "War?"

Ruth: "No, peanuts."

—W.H.S.—

Ross Hoppin: "No woman ever made a fool of me."

Jane Crowley: "Gosh, did you do it all by yourself?"

—W.H.S.—

Worth Buckles: "Why do you wear your glasses at night?"

Peter Richter: "Well, if I didn't, I couldn't recognize the people I dream about."

—W.H.S.—

First Siamese Twin: "You need a shave."

Second Siamese Twin: "How d'you know?"

First Siamese Twin: "'Cause I need one."

—W.H.S.—

Alice Jordan: "I cook and bake for you, and what do I get? Nothing!"

Merritt Hollingsworth: "You're lucky. I get indigestion."

—W.H.S.—

Mother: "Go and wash your face and neck."

Fred Wirth: "Neck who, mother?"

—W.H.S.—

Edwin Proctor: "I wonder why fat men are usually good natured?"

Robert Towle: "Probably because it takes them so long to get mad clear through."

—W.H.S.—

Bobby Lowe: "Never take a blacksmith's check."

Leslie Murphy: "Why?"

Bobby: "It may be forged."

—W.H.S.—

Bobby Dexter: "If a man broke a clock, could he be convicted of killing time?"

Barbara Dexter: "No, the clock struck first."

—W.H.S.—

Judge: "Six months on the rock pile! Have you anything to say to that?"

Prisoner: "That's crushing news, your honor."

—W.H.S.—

A cockney (hearing an owl for the first time): "An' wot's that?"

"An owl."

"Yus, yus! But wot's 'owlin'?"

—W.H.S.—

Ed Howard: "An up-to-date prestidigitator no longer takes rabbits out of silk hats!"

Ronald Davis: "No?"

Ed: "No. He pulls out peewee golf courses."

In Appreciation

By their financial contributions these organizations and business representatives of Woodland have made possible the scenes of Woodland and Yolo County and the illustrations of prize Yolo County stock, included in this edition of the Ilex.

The Student Body of Woodland High School is pleased to express its sincere and keen appreciation to all who have co-operated in this generous way, even in this season of financial stress.

A Good Description of Yolo County

DEUTERONOMY

Chapter 8, Verses 7-11

For Jehovah thy God bringeth thee into a good land, a land of brooks and water, of fountains and springs, flowing forth in valleys and hills; a land of wheat and barley, and vines and fig trees and pomegranates; a land of olive trees and honey; a land wherein thou shalt eat bread without scarceness; thou shalt not lack anything in it.
